Letter from Forest Grove

FOREST GROVE, August 22, 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

We were last night stirred up on the subject of Temperance, by its eloquent advocate, Rev. Geo. H. Taylor. He is doing a noble work, and we ought all to co-operate with him. The increase of intemperance in our communities admonishes us that something should be speedily done to stay the progress of the evil. I wish Mr. Taylor could inculcate such a faith among the villages and towns of our valley, until the work was accomplished.

Forest Grove is alive after its fashion. The Fall Term has commenced, and students are gathering in. Nothing can be more intensely alive and healthfully excited than a community made up so largely of young people. The young are alive on their own account. The older people from sympathy are rejuvenated. There can be no pleasanter position for one who has not lost the "spirit of youth," than among a crowd of young men. Therefore, it is, perhaps, that Forest Grove is as cheerful and happy a neighborhood as can be found in Oregon.

The number of students in the Collegiate Department is lager than ever before.

We have just learned that another Professorship is supplied by the appointment of an able man, though who he is, has not yet transpired. He comes from that land whence comes our highest culture, and where our noblest principles were nursed and cradled—New England.

It is expected that President Marsh will in the course of a year make an attempt, (and no doubt it will be a success,) to secure another endowment fund at the East, which will give the Pacific University the means of meeting the growing wants of our State—furnishing an education that will meet all reasonable expectations.

A new Academy building is about completed and a new college building, of about the same dimensions as the present one, is to be erected and outwardly finished this Fall.

DE MARISCO

ACQUITTAL OF MISS. HARRIS—SCENE IN THE COURT-ROOM.—Washington, July 19th.—The trial of Miss Harris terminated this afternoon, having occupied ten days. The Court-room was densely crowded with interested spectators, including many ladies, long before the Court was formally opened. D. W. Voorhees made the closing speech in behalf of the accused, and District Attorney Carrington delivered the concluding argument for the prosecution. The latter said appeals had been made to the sympathies of the jury—nothing else, and he could prove it. "Great God!" he exclaimed, "what an array of counsel! Joseph H. Bradley, the great and eminent lawyer—"

Before he had finished the sentence Marshal Gooding interrupted the speaker, telling the audience they must cease laughing or he would arrest them.

Carrington said: Let them laugh, Judge; they have the right to laugh or cry."

Continuing his remarks, he said: "If the jury acquit this woman on the ground of insanity, they put upon the record a fact that will make them look ridiculous. The [illegible] is laid in Chicago. We find that Mary Harris meets Mary Devlin, who keeps a millinery establishment. What kind of an establishment was that?"

Judge Hughes here called the attention of the Court to the misrepresentation of the evidence by the District Attorney.

Judge Wylie informed the District Attorney that he should not retaliate upon Miss Devlin as to the character of her house, because the counsel of the defense had attacked Dr. Burroughs. There was nothing in said [illegible] against the character of the house of Miss Devlin, and he would not permit him to make an attack upon the house, though he might convey it as much as he liked upon the testimony of these ladies; but he should not assail her house, against which there was no evidence.

Carrington: No man shall say that I was ever seen to cower. I discharge my duty in the fear of God and without the fear of man.

Judge Wylie—You shall not go in that manner, sir. I will put you in the custody of the Marshal. You shall not go on, sir, in that way. I will have no discussion between you and myself to be determined by the jury.

Judge Hughes said he did not desire to interrupt the District Attorney. He therefore hoped he would confine himself to the evidence and within bounds.

Judge Wylie said that it was unpleasant for him to interrupt counsel; but in the closing argument the counsel must limit themselves to the recognized bounds.

Carrington resumed his argument and again denounced Miss Devlin.

Bradley said such conduct was unbecoming a gentleman, and no gentleman would use such language. He could not sit quietly and suffer the unfortunate lady to be insulted.

Carrington replied that he would do his duty.

Bradley rejoined that no gentleman could use such language.

Carrington said he would return the insult, the gentleman having used such language against Dr. Burroughs.

Bradley said Miss Devlin was brought here by him, and he would protect her. An attack upon her was an attack upon him, and he would resent it.

The Court ordered the Marshal to stop the quarrelling, and informed Carrington that he was going beyond bounds in using such language against the lady, against whom there was nothing in evidence.

After Carrington had concluded his argument, Judge Wylie said to the jury that the law had been laid down by the Court. Feeling satisfied that they understood it, he would now submit the case without further charge. He hoped they had made up their minds, and would soon render their verdict.

The jury retired to their room and in about ten minutes returned with a verdict of "not guilty." The announcement was received with loud applause. Some of the women cried with joy. Handkerchiefs were waved and hats thrown up. A large number of spectators rushed toward Miss Harris to congratulate her on her acquittal, the words of which had scarcely been announced when she fainted, and was taken from the Courtroom in the arms of Bradley, her senior counsel. Persons outside the room soon caught it up and repeated the acclamations of joy.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

MONDAY MORNING, AUGUST [illegible], 186[illegible]

Agitators and Peace Makers

Since the termination of the war there seem to be two classes of people at the South, affected very differently toward the national Government. The first of these classes is made up in part of that portion of the people who, though overborne by the furious storm that convulsed the entire South, still maintained a latent love for the Union, and in part by considerable numbers of those who were most eminent in originating and conducting the rebellion. The other class is composed of those rebels who did not acquire prominent positions during the war, but whose hatred of the General Government is more intense than that of many who took a leading part in the insurrectionary movement. In general those who held high positions in the Confederate Government, so called, and in the rebellious armies, are disposed to submit to the National authorities without further opposition. Some of them, indeed, would be disposed to go into retirement and obscurity, an act which all loyal men can most heartily commend. It is not from rebel Governors and Congressmen and members of Cabinet that our present difficulties with the South immediately proceed. Petty politicians, the leaders of towns and counties, the fomentors and conductors of the contemptible war of village vexation, are the men who now stand most in the way of final and complete pacification. We are not to suppose that the chiefs of the rebellion are suddenly inspired with a wonderful love for the Government they tried so hard to subvert. But they have, at least, the good sense to perceive that they can accomplish more for themselves and the South by a hearty acquiescence in the policy of the Government, than by a factious and harassing opposition to the measures which it insists upon. Some of these men who were instrumental in concerting and conducting the rebellion, are now playing the singular part of peace-makers, and are striving with all their powers to restore order, not perhaps from any love to the Government, but because they see no other way to reinstate themselves and the people into the position they have lost.

At a recent meeting in Winnsboro, South Carolina, W. W. Boyce made a pacificatory address to the people of that seditious little State. Boyce is a native of South Carolina, was a member of our Thirty Sixth Congress, became a violent rebel, as, indeed, he had always been an ardent secessionist and was a member of the rebel Congress, we believe, from first to last. In his speech he gave his auditors some sound advice, showing that he understands the true method of restoring harmony and peace. We give some extracts:

> Our greatest statesmanship consists of pacification with the North. Every man should lend himself to this work. Whoever does a kindness to a Northern man is doing a wise thing for his country. Let us forget this horrible struggle through which we have passed, as much as we can. Let us look before us and not behind us.—Let us not despair of our country. God is wiser than we are. The history of nations is the judgment of God. Let us acquiesce in that destiny, from which there is no appeal. Slavery is gone, but all is not lost. Our fortunes are shattered, we are poor indeed, but the heavens are still above us, and though the way before us is rugged, let us with great hearts move forward to fulfill our mission, whatever it may be.
> I consider slavery as gone, and the best thing for us to do is to recognize that fact distinctly and unequivocally, and accept it in perfect good faith, with all its logical consequences. Any other course is only going to protract and intensify the the darkness of the night through which we are passing. Let us recognize the great fact that the negro is no longer a slave and let us act toward him in a kind spirit.
> We will soon be invited to resume our position as one of the United States, on terms of perfect equality. As we have had the greatest war upon record so, I trust, we may have the greatest peace. Upon ourselves will depend to a very large degree how advantageous this peace shall be to us. We must act under the influence of new ideas. We must not listen to the influence of our passions, but to our reason, and the future may be more auspicious to us than the most sanguine now imagine.

This language is quite in contrast with the utterances of those who declare that they will continue their opposition and cherish their hostility to the Government in the endeavor to vex, to harass and finally with the aid of their partisan friends, to gain political ascendancy over loyal people in the hope to be avenged on those who have defeated their treasonable projects. We are glad to find such men as Boyce now becoming peace makers. Men of less note will endeavor to fan the smouldering embers of discord into a flame again, but we hope that some, at least, of the late rebel leaders will now give their influence and abilities to the work of restoring the Southern States to their place in the Union, since by doing so the people will be able to regain the rights and privileges which they lost through their rebellion.

EASTERN OREGON.—It is known that the large portion of the country east of the Cascade mountains is arid, unproductive and unfit for settlement, but it is by no means true that all parts of it are so. In many of the valleys, settlers are already to be found, and wherever suitable locations exist, pioneers are pushing their way in with the purpose of establishing themselves permanently. We shall never have a very large agricultural population east of the Cascade mountains, but that portion of the State is certain to receive considerable additions to the number of its people within a year or two.

Capt. Lafollett's company of soldiers, lately ordered to Crooked river, and perhaps already arrived there, will afford protection to settlers in that locality. It is expected that the Indians will not be permitted to range through that country at will during the next summer as they have hitherto done. Such military protection ought to be afforded as will enable settlers to occupy in security the numerous fertile valleys throughout all eastern Oregon. It may be that the immigration of this year will settle in that region in considerable numbers. Eastern Oregon is growing rapidly in population and wealth and will erelong come to be thought a most important part of the State.

PAT MALONE AND JOHN MITCHEL.—Pat Malone is in Idaho. Not long since he published a letter in the World of Idaho City, fiercely denouncing the authorities of the Government for arresting John Mitchel for treason. Patrick then goes on asking the admirers of Mitchel to give money to support the traitor's family. If his family is in need, it is to be hoped that the appeal will be successful. Most of us, however will not be able to commend the spirit in which Pat begs for the money. He says "Two of Mitchel's noble sons died in the Confederate army." Further the almoner says, "Let us testify our appreciation of Mitchel's abilities, worth and devotion to principle." With Patrick of Oregon "devotion to principle" means devotion to the memory of the late Confederacy. "Noblemen and men devoted to principle," quoth Pat, are they who supported the rebellion. Will anybody undertake to say that the author of the letter we are quoting from is not quite as good a Confederate as Mitchel himself?

The Postoffice Department is now paying a surplus at the rate of a million and a half a year above expenses. The sending of mails through the South will, no doubt, soon cause the expenses of the Department to exceed the receipts as usual.

Washington dispatches assert positively that Jeff Davis' Attorneys are not to be permitted to see the arch-traitor until he is removed to that city for trial.

A man 25 years of age, light complexion, heavy built, five feet [illegible] inches high, full face, shaved smooth, had light pants and fancy plaid vest, with [illegible] and navy boots.

A man about six feet high, with dark hair, black pants and white [illegible] shirt, had a silver hunting case watch, American make, No. 116 [illegible] case 105, and short [illegible] with $11.

A woman [illegible] years of age, five feet four inches high, had a plain alpaca dress with black velvet [illegible] black [illegible] gaiters.

A man 30 years of age, five feet six inches high, light hair, had on a gray shirt and dark [illegible] pants.

We are informed by Captain Johnson, of the steamer Del Norte that the body of Mrs. Wright came ashore at Trinidad on Wednesday last, being identified through her underclothing which was marked with her name in full. Upon the arrival of the steamer Del Norte at Humboldt, Capt. Schmidt commanding Fort Humboldt was informed of the fact, and Thursday morning left the Bay on the steam tug Mary Ann to secure the body and place it in a coffin preparatory to sending it to this city. Two other bodies were observed in the surf at Trinidad, but as yet the undertow has prevented their being washed ashore and it has been impossible to recover them.

Eastern News by Steamer.

Advices received by the Golden City give some idea of the causes which led to the failure of Ketchum & Son, Graham & Co., and others on the 17th inst. in New York.

It appears from what has been published that the Secretary of the Treasury has endeavored recently to put an end to speculations in gold, which have proved so injurious to finances of the country for some time past. With this view it is now stated that whenever gold advances above a certain price the Secretary of the Treasury through his agents enters the market and sells, thus frustrating the designs of brokers and others who have for so long a period advanced or depressed the value of currency to suit their own interests. From the nearly uniform quotations of gold for a month or six weeks prior to the 17th, the date of the failures above referred to, it would appear as if the Secretary of the Treasury had furnished means during that length of time to hold Government paper steadily in the New York market.

Advices from New York by the Golden City bring information of the death of Mrs. M. C. Forbes, an actress well known in California.

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—We have extraordinary reports concerning the doings of the Independent Union Convention which was called to nominate unpledged and independent candidates of undoubted unionism, to be supported by the Union voters of San Francisco. It is nothing less than that a majority of the Convention are upon the point of making a bargain with Felton by which they are to have six legislative candidates, giving Felton the balance. It is further stated on the streets, that the majority of the Convention is in the hands of aspirants for the United States Senate entirely, and that the interests of the people are being traded away as was done by Park and other Senatorial aspirants three years ago.

The funeral of the late James Nesbit, of the Bulletin, will take place to-morrow. The services will be held in Calvary Church on Bush street at 12 o'clock. The remains will be interred at Lone Mountain Cemetery, in a lot adjoining James King of William.

Patrick Dolan, a packer, while at work on the building of the Pacific Board of Brokers this morning was precipitated to the pavement, breaking his neck, and killing him instantly.

General Halleck and Staff are at the Occidental Hotel, and have been visited by Gen. McDowell and Staff. General Halleck's staff is composed of the following gentlemen: Brig. Gen. Charles A. Whittier, Lieut. Col. D. Scott, son of Rev. Dr. Scott, Maj. John C. McLean Taylor.

MEDICAL NOTICE.

DR. N. DAVIDSOHN,

RESPECTFULLY INFORMS THE PUBLIC OF Portland and vicinity of his recent arrival in the city, with the intention of taking up a permanent residence at this progressive place. Dr. D., late Physician and Surgeon in the United States army, is an honorary graduate, a practical and experienced Physician, Surgeon and Accoucheur, and in virtue of his theoretical and practical knowledge claims public trust and confidence. He requests suffering humanity, afflicted with chronic or acute disorders, to apply to him immediately, that the medical skill he professes to possess may be made apparent and beneficent to the public.

The Doctor will confidentially receive and respond to any application forwarded in writing.

His fees are usually moderate, and will be reduced to individual circumstances.

Dr. D. also respectfully informs the poorer class of humanity that his office will be open for the reception of poor sufferers only every Monday and Thursday between the hours of 9 and 11½ A. M. Sincere [illegible] advice will be granted to them gratis, and faithful attendance to obstetrical cases whenever required, Free of all Charges.

He speaks the English, French and German languages fluently.

Fire. On Saturday last [illegible] of Mr. W[illegible] [illegible] on the corner of [illegible] Fourth streets, was [illegible] by fire. The house was the property of Mr. Lewis Goldard. The loss in furniture and buildings was not less than $2,500. The Fire Department was on hand very promptly and by their exertions prevented the burning of two other buildings [illegible] on the north [illegible] which Mr. Goldard and people were just [illegible] furniture when water [illegible] streams from the [illegible] the Water Company's [illegible] The [illegible] ran to the [illegible] in five and six blocks of the [illegible] calculating to work the [illegible] pany was reminded [illegible] street within a block of the burning [illegible] It was taking suction [illegible] not many moments [illegible] work at the reservoir [illegible] able service. The origin of the fire [illegible] but the most reasonable hypothesis is that it was [illegible] by a [illegible] fire thimble in the chimney, allowing sparks to ignite after falling [illegible] The first intimation of the fire was by Mrs. H[illegible] [illegible] a child was asleep [illegible] The alarm was immediately given [illegible] furniture saved was from the [illegible] first floor. Mr. Higgins asks us to [illegible] his thanks to the Department and citizens who were so energetic in rendering him and his family assistance [illegible] the fire. Also to the Sisters of Charity who were kind enough to take an active part in the arrangement of his family goods.

A New 'Bus.—The bark H. W. Almy which arrived in port on Saturday last, brought [illegible] [illegible] omnibus for the Lincoln House. [illegible] to go such a vehicle about. The [illegible] coming to Mr. Coffin is the second Omnibus [illegible] Portland some years ago an effort was made [illegible] but it was not successful on account of the bad [illegible] of the streets, or [illegible] So for years we have been without one. A cab was also tried, but was finally assigned [illegible] a bad debt, and the last we knew of that speculation was, when about three years ago, we [illegible] the body of it daily in the [illegible] Jackson street. [illegible] not so populous as now. It was going into [illegible] and a pretty rough country at that. [illegible] above the [illegible] street. The enterprise of the popular pro[illegible] of the Lincoln House is commendable, and we trust he may be amply rewarded in his efforts. Keep up with the times. The day must soon come when such vehicles as he has just imported will be sought for; and when people see plenty of fine [illegible] Hacks [illegible] etc., on the docks and in the streets, they will think the more of our metropolitan appearance. We do this [illegible] in a little reverie, and picture the future [illegible] of Portland, with her clean streets, [illegible] tage, driving, [illegible] and business community [illegible] and with elegant suburban residences [illegible] [illegible] ing and wealthy metropolis, but we are admonished that the reverie is not needed—the reality [illegible] upon us bulging every day revealed to us. To the subject. The [illegible] of Mr. Coffin's from a New York manufactory [illegible] in readiness to convey passengers to and from the Hotel and steamboat—and cars, when we get the railroad.

Letter from Fort Boise

A friend has handed us the following letter for publication:

FORT BOISE, Aug. 11, 1865.

The Idaho election has resulted again in the triumph of the Copperheads—this time by a larger vote than last year considering the whole vote cast. Ford Patterson and his crew govern Idaho. A long Governor [illegible] is up at Rocky Bar drinking whisky and having the delirium tremens. The civil government of Idaho is gone to the dogs. On the principal thoroughfares outward gangs of men collect to rob, steal and murder with impunity—there being no civil law to interfere with them. I think I am safe in saying that not a day passes in this part of the Territory without one or more men meeting a violent death. Nor not even hears of a conviction for crime, or punishment for an offence. It is a "weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth." If Milton had lived nowadays he would have banished Satan into Idaho in preference to the infernal regions.

[illegible] Ashley, M. C., from Ohio and Chairman of the House Committee on Territories, passed through here leaving Boise City for Umatilla this morning. He is accompanied by a gentleman named Frothingham, formerly a Colonel in the Army. The General is on an inspecting tour through the Territories having visited Utah, Montana, Colorado & Co. He has had his eyes opened, as to the condition of affairs here.

The Union men of the town got up a meeting last evening and the General was asked to address the crowd, which he did in a very sensible straightforward style, making a very happy hit. Everybody was well pleased. He is opposed to the sale of the mineral lands, and in favor of large military forces in the Territories.

The immigration is coming in in considerable numbers, all or nearly all, going to Oregon. They are tolerably well provided and seem to be a pretty good class of people, so far as I have seen, and what is quite important, generally Union men. There is but little destitution among them so far. The reports from the plains are, that the emigration is large and all going to Oregon. It will be quite late on account of the system adopted on the plains of traveling in large bodies for protection against the Indians.

There is but little of anything transpiring in the military line, except the movement of troops to the different winter camps about to be established. There are three of these: Camp Lyon, in Jordan Creek Valley, Camp Alvord, in Alvord Valley and a camp to be established at Fort Hall. The Q. M. Dept., I learn is considerably crowded to find transportation for everything. Curry's plan appears to be, to make a Winter campaign against the Indians.

The weather is excessively hot and sultry. Business in the Territory seems dull—merchants and business men complain of a slack in trade.

South Carolina.—Matters seem to be progressing favorably in South Carolina. It is hardly to be doubted that this State will soon take her place by the side of her sisters in a Union which shall be devoted to the propagation of liberty for evermore. The New York Times, of a late date, contains a Washington special which says:

The South Carolina delegation, headed by Governor Perry, had an interview with the President lately, which resulted in the mutual satisfaction of the parties. It appears that the delegation was suggested at various town meetings throughout the State, and the members have been selected and were on their way to this city before the news that Governor Perry had been appointed Provisional Governor of the State. Governor Perry first heard of his appointment when he had got seventy miles from home.

In the course of the interview Governor Perry assured the President that South Carolina would be represented by her Congressmen in the month of December next, and doubtless, by the first day of the session, that the State would adopt the amendment to the Constitution abolishing slavery, that the parish system will be abolished, that the Presidential electors will hereafter be elected by direct vote of the people, and, in general, the State laws conform to the spirit and form of those of the Northern States and to the Federal Constitution.

The Electric Telegraph Seventy-Eight Years Ago.—A curious extract from Arthur Young's travels in France, published in Dublin in 1795, which has been recently exhumed, is as follows:

Paris, October 16, 1787.—In the evening to Monsieur Lomond, a very ingenious and inventive mechanic, who has made an improvement in the jenny for spinning cotton. * * * * * * In electricity he has made a remarkable discovery. You write two or three words on paper; he takes it with him into a room, and turns a machine inclosed in a cylindrical case, at the top of which is an electrometer, a small, fine pith ball; a wire connects with a cylinder and electrometer in a distant apartment, and his wife by remarking the corresponding motions of the ball writes down the words they indicate, from which it appears that he has formed an alphabet of motions. As the length of the wire makes no difference in the effect, the correspondence may be carried on to any distance within or without a fortified town, for instance or for purposes much more worthy. Whatever the use may be, the invention is beautiful.

Resignation of Gen. Dix.—By the orders of Gen. Meade, who has command of the Military Division of the Atlantic, and of Generals Dix and Hooker, some important changes have been made in the organization of the forces of the United States. The Department of the East, hitherto independent, is merged in the "Military Division of the Atlantic," and Gen. Dix retires from the command. Gen. Dix ranks every officer in the army, except Lieut.-Gen. Grant. He was first appointed, and can therefore be second to none. It would be, according to military idea, infra dig for him to serve under General Meade, and when it was known that officer was to have command of this division, Gen. Dix, who had intended leaving the service as early as he could without damage to it, sent in his resignation. It has been accepted, and Gen. Joe Hooker is appointed in his place. Gen. Hooker, between whom and Gen. Dix the most cordial relations exist, retains the staff of the retiring commander. Every one of them has been brevetted, and the official announcement of their retention in position conveys likewise the information of their brevet.

Don't Know How to Take Him.—The "Democratic" Convention at Sacramento was recently asked by some of its members to indorse President Johnson and his policy. Some were in favor of doing so, while others bitterly opposed it. Quite a debate ensued between those who wanted to take the President into the "Democratic" fold and those who repudiated him. Evidently, these fellows have not yet learned which side of Mr. Johnson they are to take. One day they claim him as a "Democrat," and the next, his patriotic policy entirely nonplusses them. The Sacramento "Democracy" concluded at last that they could not indorse him. Perhaps they will try him once more before giving him up irrevocably to the Abolitionists.

California Marble.—The Red Bluff Independent has the subjoined account of a mountain of marble, near McCloud river, California:

About one mile from Silverthorn's bridge, which crosses McCloud river, towers to the clouds a gigantic mountain, white as if clad in the livery of a ghost, at the foot of which is located Leo A. DeLong's marble quarry, from which they take both the white and clouded marble of as fine quality as that imported from the Green Mountain State. The whole mountain appears to be one vast pile of marble of quantity sufficient to supply the world. It receives a finish as fine and smooth as glass, or like a polished mirror. The great and remarkable cave, one room of which is 100 feet in length by 40 feet in breadth and 70 feet high, is near this marble quarry. The quarry and cave are only some five miles from Copper City.

New Game for Children.—The little boys now amuse themselves in the streets by playing "Jeff Davis" as follows: Each in his turn puts on an old hoop skirt and bonnet, runs away, and is pursued and captured by the others representing the Union soldiers, who, amid great noise and confusion, confine him a prisoner in some unfortunate neighbor's area, and laugh at him through the bars, until the occupants of the house chase the little rogues away.—New York Sun.

Gen. Ewell Released.—Boston, July 20. The wife of the rebel General Ewell proceeded to Fort Warren yesterday morning, with orders from President Johnson for the release of her husband on taking the oath of allegiance. He was liberated and left for the South last evening.

Oh! Oh! The manager of Astley's theater, London, announces that "the happy termination of the war recalls Miss Ada Isaacs Menken to America!"

The Rev. T. H. Pearne, late of Oregon, has had the honorary degree of D. D. conferred upon him by the Ohio Wesleyan University.

Patriotic Rebel Style.—The patriotic owners of a threshing machine, on the Stanislaus bottom lands, being called upon a few days ago, as we are informed, to thresh a crop partly owned by a secessionist, the latter, on seeing the Stars and Stripes attached to the machine, ordered the owners either to pull down the flag or pull up stakes and leave, as no machine bearing that flag could thresh the job. The words were no sooner uttered than up came the stakes and away went the machine. By the intervention of other parties who were Democrats, and, to their honor be it said, revered the National emblem, the order was given to recall the machine, which was done, and the work went on.—Stockton Ind.

False Delicacy.—The friends of those who are troubled with bad breath, and through over squeamishness, dislike to refer to it, commit a positive and cruel mistake, especially if they are aware of the merits and great efficacy of the fragrant Sozodont. This is the true and only remedy for the difficulty; there is no valid excuse for a bad breath now.

When we consider the number of human beings that die with Consumption every year, the importance of a medicine that will cure all pulmonary affections that tend to that complaint, and even to arrest the destroyer after it has indicated its presence in the system, must be admitted to be beyond all estimate. Fever and Ague is not a Disease, but a symptom. The liver is the part affected, and to this organ should medication be directed. The arrest of the chills and fever is not a cure of the disease. It is but the suspension of a symptom, liable to return on the first [illegible] of blood or body. In restoring the liver to healthy action not only that symptom—fever and ague—disappears, but those other symptoms, [illegible] jaundiced eye, pain in the side and shoulder, depression of spirits. OSGOOD'S INDIA CHOLAGOGUE is the appropriate remedy. It invigorates the liver, relaxes the system of bilious accumulation, and by removing the cause effects a thorough and permanent cure.

The Faneuil Hall Address

THE NEGRO SUFFRAGE QUESTION

The Committee appointed at the recent meeting at Faneuil Hall, Boston, to prepare an address to the people of the United States have issued the following:

To the people of the United States: In pursuance of the custom of the American people to confer freely with one another in times of civil emergency, and the example of our own ancestors to speak to their fellow citizens from this place, we have been commissioned by the citizens to-day assembled in Faneuil Hall to address you upon the state of public affairs.

We claim no peculiar right to be heard, even by reason of the sacredness of the spot from which we speak, but the greatness of the exigency, the critical question your representatives in Congress will soon be required to meet, and the singular unanimity which appears among the patriotic people in this portion of our land leads us to hope for your attention and consideration.

To remove obstructions which we know may be artfully thrown in the way, we wish to say to you in advance—as a matter of honor between citizens—that this meeting and this address have not been prompted by any organization or by any purpose of party or personal politics. They are the spontaneous expression of the convictions of men in earnest who have differed much in time past, and may be separated again in their political action, but who are forced to a common opinion on the present exigency of affairs.

That we may wisely consider our rights and duties, understand whom and what we have to deal with, and the probabilities of the future, we must ask you to review with us the ground, however familiar it may seem to you.

For thirty years or more, Southern society has been moving steadily in an opposite direction from our own, until its entire system and (if we may call it so,) its civilization have become hostile to and at last inconsistent with our own. In their progress the Southern people had reached a position where it may be said to have become their settled doctrine, social and political, that the people of color are—not by accident and temporarily but by nature and forever—unfit for any other condition than that of absolute slaves. On several millions of such persons, not all negroes, but in whom white blood, with often but a quarter or an eighth of the African—their social fabric rested. When not aggressive, their system was intrenched behind State Institutions, where no national authority could reach it. From this condition of things there followed consequences of the utmost social and political importance to the Government and people of the republic. Slavery with its effects on what would otherwise have been the laboring class of whites, resulted in a system which is substantially oligarchical. It gave to the masters the advantages of oligarchy and trained them personally in its habits, sentiments and passions. Slavery and oligarchy do not rest on political economy, but have their sources in the pride and passions of men. They are, therefore, if circumstances at all favor them, an ever present danger. The Southern people came to consider themselves as molded by their training and position into a master race, not only over their slaves but in their relations with their fellow citizens of the free States, whose political equality and free labor they had come to despise. To support their system in national politics, they invented and used, as a most effective weapon, the dogma of State supremacy, which they disguised under the name of State rights. It may, therefore, be fairly said that three ideas had complete possession of Southern society—slavery, aristocracy and State supremacy. Upon these they carried on their political warfare until 1860. On these they founded their empire in 1861. On these, and for these they have waged against the republic for four years a war of stupendous proportions.

That we may understand the character of this antagonistic force, with which we have now to deal politically, we ask you to remember what they accomplished. They made no insurrection of professed citizens for a redress of grievances. They made no revolution or civil war within an admitted sovereignty. They set up a distinct and independent sovereignty within the territory of the republic. This extended over eleven States, and we hardly saved our capital, while in the States of Maryland, Kentucky and Missouri, the most the nation obtained at first was a declaration of sovereign neutrality. Looking at the fact, and not at right or law, we must remember that the rebellion drove out from its enlarged borders every representative and obliterated every sign of Federal authority, possessed every foot of ground and established and put in operation a Central Government, complete in all its parts, legislative, executive and judicial. It is true, they preserved the form of a republic, but they might have made their Government a monarchy. They did as they chose. It happened that they [illegible] their State lines, and made few changes in their State Constitutions, but they might have obliterated both and resolved themselves into a consolidated empire. They then demanded recognition of us, and of the rest of the world, raised armies and a navy, and forced the issue of war. We had only to decline the issue of war, and the rebel Government would have stood forth a completed, recognized empire.

In the course of a war of four years, for the restoration of the republic, we must not forget that not one place surrendered from political considerations. There were individual deserters, but not a regiment laid down its arms from motives of returning loyalty. They fought to the last—as bitterly at last as ever—and were surrendered by their commanders only when there was no other resource. It was by force that their Government was broken down. It is by force that the territory they held is now in our military occupation. They admit themselves overpowered by superior numbers and material resources, but were not aware that the admission extends any further. Military organizations against the republic are not practicable; but they are seeking to open, and with the least possible delay, the avenues to their old fields of political contest and ascendancy. They will endeavor to save all they can of the doctrine of State supremacy for future use. In the [illegible] for the return of the rebel Legislature to Richmond, and in the Sherman-Johnston pacification, our Government barely escaped a serious, if not a fatal, political defeat at the hands of a vanquished party. The purpose of the South now is to [illegible] the exercise of State functions with the utmost possible speed, and with the [illegible] change in their [illegible] systems. To [illegible] that they will do and submit to whatever is necessary. It must constantly be borne in mind that [illegible] a State is admitted to its place, the power of the nation over all subjects of State [illegible] is gone. If the dogma of State supremacy is not destroyed for practice as well as in [illegible], the war will have been in vain. It has not only been the favorite weapon of slavery but has been eagerly caught up by the enemies of our institutions in Europe—the tenet that the United States is not a nation, a government, a sovereignty—that the citizens owe to it no direct allegiance; that they cannot commit against it the crime of treason, if they carry with them into treason the forms of State authority. The right of this republic to be a sovereign among the sovereignties of the earth must be put beyond future dispute, abroad as well as at home. We have paid the fearful price, and we must not be defrauded of the results.

Let us now, fellow-citizens, look at the dangers which attend an immediate restoration of the rebel States to the exercise of full State authority. Slavery is the law of every rebel State. In some of these States free persons of color are not permitted to reside; in none of them have they the right to testify in Court, or to be educated; in few of them to hold land, and in all of them they are totally disfranchised. But, far beyond the letter of the law, the spirit of the people and the habits of [illegible] are such as to insure the permanence of that state of things in substance. If slavery should be abolished in form, their spirit and habits, their pride and passions will lead them to uphold their oligarchical system built upon a debased colored population, and intrenched behind State institutions over which the nation cannot pass in peace. Their personal relations with the colored people as masters over slaves being changed in law, they will look upon them in a new light, as a class to be feared, and as the cause of their defeat and humiliation. They will not tax themselves to give to the freedmen an education. They will not permit the continuance within their States of philanthropic agencies for colored people from the free States. They will not encourage Northern immigration with systems of small freeholds and free labor; nor will capital and labor go there from the free States under present auspices. Returning to their old arts of politics, which they are fond of, and in which long practice has made them expert, they will seek to repudiate a debt incurred for the suppression of their revolt; nor can we shut our eyes to the danger of political combinations, [illegible] ruled by this oligarchy and [illegible] to its work. It is useless to suggest or conjecture methods and means; the spirit and motive will take such forms as occasions may require.

We trust it cannot be necessary to pause here and refute a political fallacy which the logic of events has already exposed. It has been contended that, forcible resistance having ceased, the rebel States are by that fact, again in their orbits, and in the rightful possession and exercise of all their functions as States in local and national affairs, just as if no war had taken place—that the nation, whether by Congress or the Executive, has no option to exercise, no powers or rights to enforce, no conditions that it can make [illegible] that the [illegible] station of [illegible] in the light of the circumstances in which we [illegible]. We are holding the rebel country in military occupation and the nation is asserting a right before it yields that occupation to see the public safety secured and the public faith preserved. The only question can be as to the mode of obtaining this result. We trust all loyal people of the land will have no hesitation in standing by the President with clear conviction as well as strong purpose on this issue. By necessity the republic must hold and exercise some control over these regions and people until the States are restored to their [illegible] as States, to [illegible] and as well [illegible] duties. This authority is to be exercised by the President or by Congress, or both, according to the nature of each case. Though resulting necessarily from the fact of the war, these powers are not necessarily to be exercised by military persons or in military forms. This temporary or provisional authority, although supreme for the time, may be exercised [illegible] by civil officers using the methods of civil power and admitting the employment of judicial and executive functions with the arts and business and social intercourse of life. This we understand to be, in substance, the position which the Government now occupies and we believe the people recognize it to be of necessity and of right.

Let us now, fellow citizens, turn our attention to our rights and duties. Having succeeded in this war, and holding the rebel States in our military occupation, it is our right and duty to secure whatever the public safety and the public faith require.

First. The principal must be put beyond all question that the republic has a direct claim upon the allegiance of every citizen, from which no State can absolve him, and to his obedience to the laws of the republic, [illegible] anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

Second—The public faith pledged to every person of color in the rebel States to secure to them and their posterity forever a complete and veritable freedom. Having promised them this freedom, received their aid on the faith of this promise, and by successful war and actual military occupation of the country having obtained the power to secure the result, we are dishonored if we fail to make it good to them.

Third. The system of slavery must be abolished and prohibited by paramount and irreversible law. Throughout the rebel States there must be, in the words of Webster, "impressed upon the soil itself an inability to bear up any but freemen."

Fourth. The systems of the State must be truly republican.

Unless these points are secured, the public faith will be broken, and there will be no safety for the public peace or the preservation of our institutions.

It must be remembered that under the Constitution most of those subjects are entirely matters of State jurisdiction. Once withdraw the powers of war, and admit a State to its full functions and the authority of the nation over those subjects is gone. It is a State function to determine who shall hold land, who shall testify in State Courts, who shall be educated, and how, who shall labor and how, and under what contracts or obligations, and how enforced, and who shall vote in national as well as State elections. We have already said that all these points now stand in the Constitutions and laws of all the rebel States decided against the freedmen. Action is necessary to put them right. So great a change is no doubt fundamental, and goes to the bottom of their social and political system. If it is not made now before civil society becomes settled before the States are restored to the exercise of all their powers, it will never be made, in all human probability, by peaceful means.

The question now occurs, how are these results to be secured before those States are permitted to resume their functions? We agree that these results ought to be secured in conformity with what may be called the American system—that upon which and for which our Constitution was made. This is a system of separate States, each with separate functions, constituted by the people of each, and self-governing within its sphere, with a central State constituted by the people of all, supreme within its sphere, and the final judge of its sphere and functions. The President recognizes the importance of proceeding in accordance with this system. He aims at a restoration of the States by the people of the States, without resort to the exercise of sovereign legislative jurisdiction over them by the General Government. In this we offer to him our sympathy, as we ask for him an intelligent support. But inasmuch as once restored, the State will be beyond our reach, the utmost care must be taken to avoid a hasty and unsatisfactory restoration. We acknowledge that there may be dangers in protracted and extensive military occupation. But we believe that the people are willing to incur their share of those perils. We believe that the people feel that the greatest hazard is in premature restoration, fraught with future danger. Any restoration would be dangerous which did not secure, beyond all reasonable peril, the abolition of slavery, actual freedom, just rights to the free, and, with in each State, "a republican form of government."

The President and his Cabinet, we have every reason to believe, have these results in view. We cannot doubt that Congress will refuse to receive any State upon any other terms. If there are any members of Congress whose fidelity upon these points is doubtful, we implore you to exercise over them all the just authority and influence of constituents.

We advance no extreme or refined theory as to what may be included within the term "a republican form of government." In the exercise of the extraordinary prerogative of the General Government to determine whether a State Constitution is "republican," there must be practical wisdom and no refined theories. If the Constitutions with which the rebel States now come are not "republican" in such a reasonable and practical sense as nations act upon, if they are so far unrepublican as to endanger public peace and the stability of our institutions, then we may treat them as not "republican" in the American sense of the term.

What, then, is the character of the present Constitutions, assuming that slavery is prohibited? Here presents itself no question of mere principle or theory, but facts of an overruling and decisive character. For one third to one half of their population are absolutely and forever not only disfranchised but deprived of all the usual rights of citizens in a republic. Not only so, but this disfranchisement is perpetual, hereditary and insurmountable. It is more deeply seated than Oriental caste. It clings to each man and his posterity forever if there be a traceable thread of African descent. No achievements in war or peace, no acquisitions of property, no education, no mental power or culture, no merits can overcome it. To make the case worse, these people are not only disfranchised, but the temper, spirit and habits of the ruling class partaking of civil authority, will keep them not only disfranchised but uneducated without land, without the right to testify, and without the means of protecting their formal freedom. The result has been and must ever be, that the system is essentially and practically oligarchal in such a sense as actually and seriously to endanger the public peace and the success of republican institutions.

Attempts are made to embarrass the subject by referring to several of the free States whose Constitutions restrict free [illegible] in the exercise of some of the usual rights of citizens. But these are not practical questions before the country. The General Government has no present cognizance of these questions in those States. Besides as we have said, the exercise of this extraordinary authority must be upon practicable and reasonable grounds and not on mere theory. The partial disfranchisement of people of color in those States we regard as one of the subtle effects of the slave power in our politics which we hope to see pass away with its cause. The number of persons whom it bears upon is so small, the effect upon them so slight, and such the state of society and the habits and feelings of the people that the substantial character of those States as "republican" is not sensibly affected. Departures from principle however small must always be regretted. But in the vast and critical affairs of nations slight aberrations in [illegible] principle are constantly occurring and are [illegible] tacitly submitted to and all work for, in fundamental institutions as well as in [illegible] and practice. The case of the rebel States is vastly and [illegible] different. It presents a question of a false principle organized and brought into action with vast dimensions having already created one war and all but destroyed the republic, and even threatening danger hereafter. We can hardly think it [illegible] faith that the [illegible] the nation [illegible] that peril over which it has passed and necessarily [illegible] by invoking the [illegible] State [illegible] cognizance [illegible] nothing [illegible].

We do not ask that the nation shall insist on unconditional universal suffrage. We admit that States determine for themselves the principles upon which they will [illegible] restrictions [illegible] they place upon suffrage. All the States make restrictions of age, sex and residence, and often annex other conditions operating in substance equally upon all, and reasonably by all. Those matters lie within the region of advice from neighbors and [illegible] of national authority. We speak only to the point where the national authority comes in. We cannot require the rebel States if we treat them as States to adopt a system for the sole reason that we think it right. Of that each State, acting as a State must be the judge. But [illegible] the situation in which the [illegible] States [illegible] the nation [illegible] public safety and peace. [illegible] full functions [illegible] to the freedmen [illegible] such manner as to be [illegible] principle upon color and [illegible] unable by intelligence and [illegible] does not place in their hands [illegible] to defend their rights as citizens [illegible] with the right to [illegible] and to testify [illegible]

It should not be [illegible] that if slavery [illegible] abolished [illegible] the Constitution [illegible] the representative population of the [illegible] State [illegible] increase of political power [illegible] rebel States [illegible] at the expense of the free States. If the freedmen remain as they now [illegible] increased power will be [illegible] similar in proportion than before. This [illegible] an additional temptation [illegible] political power.

As we speak [illegible] should be done for the [illegible] as those who have been [illegible]. It does not follow that those who have been brought up under [illegible] whether it should be [illegible] be substituted in its place. The people of the North have seen the colored races acting as freemen under free institutions [illegible] the South have not. They [illegible] man of color only as a slave [illegible] slave system [illegible] opinions as to what he may do [illegible] done for him [illegible]. History teaches us that [illegible] not emanate from the masters. And wherever emancipation has seemed to [illegible] in the difficulties [illegible] traced [illegible] by the late master class.

Appeals may be made [illegible] subject of the social equality of the people of color. We must not permit our opinions to be warped by such considerations [illegible] strictly one of political justice and safety and not of social equality. What the free man of color admitted in the [illegible] should deposit a vote which he can write himself gives a [illegible] which he can read and sign, and pays tax on the homestead he has bought, the law forces no companionship between his intellectual, moral, physical [illegible] white citizen of whatever race [illegible] live, votes or testifies by his side.

But the nation has a deep interest [illegible] man by themselves considered. The republic must choose to-day between two [illegible]. The millions of people of color in the South [illegible] part of them carrying the best white blood in their veins must be either an [illegible] landholding, [illegible] tax-paying, voting, self-protecting population, [illegible] debased [illegible] population the substratum [illegible] restless unrepublican political and social [illegible]. The President has undertaken to restore of the rebel States, an experiment for speedy restoration. Recognizing the general policy and duty of restoration as soon as practicable, the experiment commands our earnest wishes for its success. By its success we mean not the return of those States to their position that they are ready to do, but their return with Constitutions in which the public safety and public faith shall be secured. We cannot conceal our apprehensions that the experiment will fail. But let not the republic fail! The more recent signs are that the spirit which caused the war is preparing to fight over politically the great ground it has lost in battle. This ought not to surprise us. Let no haste to restore a State, no fear of [illegible] dissatisfaction, lead the republic to compromise its safety or its honor!

During the progress toward restoration, the nation holds the State in military occupation by powers resulting necessarily from successful war. This hold upon them is to be continued until this or some other experiment does succeed. We need not be precipitate. The authority, although resulting from war, may as we have said, be largely exercised by civil methods and civil functionaries and be accompanied with the enjoyment of [illegible] civil rights and local municipal institutions, executive and judicial. If the present experiment fails we may try the experiment of building up the people from the foundation by means of municipal institutions of towns and counties with the aid of education, commerce and immigration, a new spirit being infused and the people becoming accommodated to their new relations and so advance gradually to complete restoration.

This is but one suggestion. Various methods are open to us. Only let it be understood that, there is no point at which the rebels can defy, politically, any more than they could in war the authority of the republic. The end the nation has in view is the same as that for which the war was accepted and prosecuted—the restoration of the States to their legitimate relations with the republic. The condition of things calls for no limitations of time or methods. By whatever course of reasoning it may be reached, upon whatever doctrine of public law it may rest, however long may be the interval of waiting, and whatever may be the process resorted to, the friends and enemies of the republic should alike understand that it has the power and will use the means to insure a final restoration of the States, with Constitutions which are republican and with provisions that shall secure the public safety and the public faith.

Signed: Theophilus Parsons, President of the meeting; the Vice Presidents, Secretaries and Richard H. Dana, Jr., Theophilus Parsons, Chas. G. Loring, John G. Whittier, Jacob M. Manning, Samuel G. Howe, George L. Stearns, Wm. Endicott, Jr., Committee to prepare the address.

Boston, June 21st.

NORTHERN EMIGRATION TO THE SOUTH.—Efforts are already being made to promote emigration to North Carolina on an extensive scale. Governor Holden and the leading Union men of the State realize that its social and political regeneration must come by the influx of Northern capital and energy, and for this purpose a general land and emigration agency has been established at Raleigh, which is intended to bring to the notice of the emigrants and capitalists the mineral and agricultural interests of the State. The agency had hardly been opened before over 100,000 acres of land and many [illegible] town and city lots were offered for sale. The want of money is very great, and prices of real estate are reasonable. Col. [illegible] M. Heck and R. P. Battle, two of the leading business men of the State, have arrived in Washington and will proceed North, to lay before the leading commercial associations of the principal cities and the people generally, the advantages offered for investments in North Carolina. Branch offices will be organized in these cities under the auspices of the Raleigh agency, for furnishing applicants with all necessary information concerning this excellent project. The gentlemen represent the people of North Carolina as not only perfectly willing, but anxious to see the tide of Northern emigration set toward their State, and in this respect they exhibit a striking contrast with the morose and sullen conduct of the people of Virginia. As a general thing the people of the old North State are firmly of the opinion that the prosperity of their State can only be restored by fostering emigration at this time, [illegible] hearty submission to the Union and the laws as will assure capitalists that their investments are safe beyond all doubt.

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, [illegible] and Organs, [illegible] of the Chest and Lungs, [illegible] and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.
